
PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION

ASSIGNMENT-GROUP 2

ALVIN VARGHESE
ROLL NO.12
S2 CSE-A

IMPROVING SOFT SKILLS OF STUDENTS IN COLLEGE

College is that period of our lives when we focus on education related to a specific field. For students, education is not just about learning through a set of syllabus , it also involves the learning and improvement of soft skills. Soft skills are those core skills that are desirable in the work environment. Top companies are more likely to hire people who have better soft skills over better academic performances.

Some of the key soft skills that industries look at while hiring is:

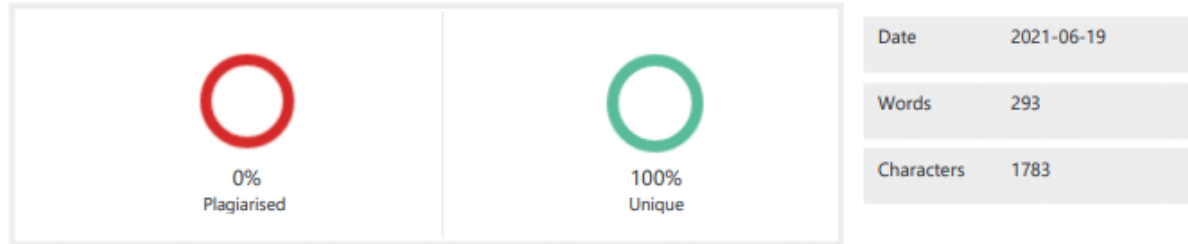

1. Leadership
2. Teamwork
3. Communication
4. Socialization
5. Decision Making

Colleges can introduce weekly activities that help and challenges the students to improve their soft skills. It is only by working on it week in week out that one can be good at it. Colleges should emphasize the importance of working as a team but at the same time the importance of stepping up. Colleges should make sure to encourage students into activities that focus on improving their soft skills. Colleges should take the time and effort to analyse student's skills and promote them to join clubs or take part in extracurricular activities that ensure that the students learn the key aspects of teamwork and collaboration.

Colleges should teach the importance of proper communication. They should also advise them about different alternatives so that they realize that there is more than one way to solve a problem.

These are just a few among countless different things that can be done to improve the soft skills of students. It is only with time and patience that anything is achievable. The path of success is not easy and short instead, it is long and tedious, only people who work for it can achieve it.

PLAGIARISM SCAN REPORT

Content Checked For Plagiarism

IMPROVING SOFT SKILLS OF STUDENTS IN COLLEGE

College is that period of our lives when we focus on education related to a specific field. For students, education is not just about learning through a set of syllabus, it also involves the learning and improvement of soft skills. Soft skills are those core skills that are desirable in the work environment. Top companies are more likely to hire people who have better soft skills over better academic performances.

Some of the key soft skills that industries look at while hiring is:

1. Leadership
2. Teamwork
3. Communication
4. Socialization
5. Decision Making

Colleges can introduce weekly activities that help and challenges the students to improve their soft skills. It is only by working on it week in week out that one can be good at it. Colleges should emphasize the importance of working as a team but at the same time the importance of stepping up. Colleges should make sure to encourage students into activities that focus on improving their soft skills. Colleges should take the time and effort to analyse student's skills and promote them to join clubs or take part in extracurricular activities that ensure that the students learn the key aspects of teamwork and collaboration.

Colleges should teach the importance of proper communication. They should also advise them about different alternatives so that they realize that there is more than one way to solve a problem.

These are just a few among countless different things that can be done to improve the soft skills of students. It is only with time and patience that anything is achievable. The path of success is not easy and short instead, it is long and tedious, only people who work for it can achieve it.

Matched Source

No plagiarism found

Check By:  Dupli Checker